It is difficult enough getting all passengers to hear safety information and communicate the importance of information to say nothing of the close environment and the anger management problem we would have to deal with with peoples personal space being invaded by unwanted conversations. This would be opening up pandora's box to say nothing of the terrorist loving the ability to use this for their benefit. judi blackmon